

It is absolutely essential that people be allowed to test mobile phones in stores before they order or buy these phones - especially those with a hearing loss. There are so many variables when it comes to a particular phone working in conjunction with a hearing aid that the only way to know for sure that they will work together decently is to try it. It is essential that this ability not be eliminated.